The suit was brought for the recovery of the difference between the contract price of certain shares the plaintiff had bought from the defendant for future delivery, and, the defendant having failed to make delivery, the market mich on the day when ning will be made within a comparatively short the contract ought to have been fulfilled. On the face of it the contract was some for the bond fide sale and purchase of the shares. but his Lordship "was of opinion that on neither side was the party concerned prepared of Major, vice Major H. S. Clarke (late Bengal), to take up the shares upon the date for which who has been promoted to the rank of Lieut. to the French Republic, left Paris on the 28th they were purchased, but had only entered _into the transaction with the intention of promoted to the rank of Captain in his stead. paying or receiving the difference of price upon the shares at the date of their delivery. according as they might rise or fall. It was, in fact, a more matter of betting on what. would be the price of the shares at the end of the month." The transaction was, thereand as such would in England have been illegal under the Act of the 8th and 9th Victoria, which was passed for the purpose of suppressing gambling in this and other the lines of the English Act is required here.

. It certainly seems an anomaly that while the Government makes the exertions it does to Supreme Court should have to decide on the tries were put on board to guard the junk, but merits of what it terms "a mere matter of betting." Between gambling and legitimate speculation there is, however, a broad dislinction, though it may not be easy to define where the one merges into the other. The English Act does not prevent speculators _dealing "for the account," that is, entering into contracts to deliver or take delivery of shares at a future date, but it would prevent judgment being recovered in such a case as that heard the other day, when the Court delivery, would naturally buy elsewhere and aue the seller for the difference in the price : to take delivery, would sell elsewhere and in like manner sue for the difference. This Was what Mr. Worron, the solicitor for the Singapore in a few days for Hongkong, and Chinese coolies and assistants, will doubtless defendant in the case of RANGEL Y. ABBAHAM, contended the plaintiff ought to have dine, namely, to have bought the shares elsewhere on the defendant failing to deliver, and that not having done so he had suffered no loss and could not recover. This, we believe, would have been held good law in England; but Mr. Justice Russell as one for sale and delivery, was not intended by either party to be construed as such, or down, and that such a transaction is perfeetly legal in Hongkong. It may be argued that the bringing into operation of the Act of 8 and 9 Victoria would not really make much difference, as parties would buy or intending to take delivery, but in the hope of being able to enter into another contract to sell or buy, as the case might be, to enable them if fulfil their first contract, and so is practically done in most cases of so-called time bargains, and it must be allowed that it gives more substantiality to the Transactions than a simple contract to pay differences. His Lordship went over the evidence given, and concerning what was done when the parties met together at Singapore, there seemed to have been a good deal of legal proceeding, and this was brought to an end by an agreement drawn up between the parties, by which, upon certain considerations, it was agreed that the plaintiff should have no claim against the defendant, and no action, civil or criminal should be taken by them, one against the other. His Lordship found that there was no reserve as to matters in China as the plaintiff sought to make out, and he was satisfied that the agreement was a complete settlement of all differences -on the one hand by withdrawing an action for damages, and on the other by foregoing any action for breach of contract. This settled all French have repudiated the Tientsin Convention, the China accounts, and if there was such an demanding an indemnity and the capture of Liu agreement, as his Lordship believed there was, the buying up of the Hang Lung bills was a cute bit of business. It seemed that the plaintiff had shown great vindictiveness throughout the case. He made charges of fraud in a most reckless way. and had the defendant arrested when there was no good cause for it. He made a bargain with the defendant to settle all matters, and then suod him, and he had probably tried it at Singapore. Judgment for the defendant with costs. NG TAT FONG V. CHEUNG BUNG KONG, $10,000. At the anniversary meeting of the Royal deographical Society, held on the 26th May, the President, in presenting the medals and grants of the year, said the Council had unanimously awarded the Founder's Model to Mr. Archibald R. Colquboun, in recognition of the great geo-Braphical value of the route-survey which he carried through Southern China in 1882, from Canon to Bhamo, on the Irawadli. He executed surveys of the whole route, from Wu-chan (150 miles west of Canton) to Tali-fu (1,300 miles of which had nover before been surveyed. The personal narrative of his long journey he had ablished in a popular form, under the title of liteross Chryse," but he had deposited the deballs of his survey with the society when he startel on a second expedition, on which he had now gone, to the same region, with the object of reaching Northern Siam and of exploring the 1109; nearest route thence to the Bay of Bengal the President, in proposing "The Health of the Medallists," said the Council of the Society, in awarding these honours, were animated only by one desire—that they should be given to the men who best deserved, no matter from what country they came, There had been this year a great number of competitors - Garmans, Russians, Italians and but for ill-success there would have been a French traveller, M. Girand, who could have put in the strongest claim; but after a full causideration of the merits of all these travellers, the Council has awarded the Founder's 2nd casuse, after three years, there is no medal to Mr. A. B. Colquboun for his travels in South China and Burmah. He said that while they did not know exactly how far Mr. Colquhoun had travelled where possibly the footsteps of the missionary might have preceded him, though no one had previously described the country, careful examination showed that he had traversed for 1,300 miles a road full of difficulties and dangers, of which nothing had desited period. hitherto been recorded by any European. Mr. Colquboun had proved himself a traveller of no ordinary kind, for, though entirely unsupported and paying his own expenses, he had taken such excellent observations that they had been able to mup the whole country; while the two most interesting volumes he had written were models of Thannal Promium will be what a record of travel should be. Another Whitehead was sent from the port side with similar effect and result, and the Vicerov - - who wasseated on a platform on the top of the lad der so as to afford him a complete view of the submarine journey of the terrible torpedo seemed to be greatly pleased at such an interesting spectacle as this torpedo practice afforded. The Erench Admiral who had gone on board the Triemphanic to receive the Vicercy, then explained through Mr. Detring as interpreter the various particulars of torpedo warfare, which no doubt impressed his Excellency with their efficacy. The whole Viceregal party, after thanking the French Admiral for the kind reception he had given them, then left the Triomphante for their own vessels. The Court of Chancery has this morning given a very important decision as far as the prospects of the liquidation of the Oriental Bank Corporation are concerned. It has authorised a further expenditure on the estates in Mauritius to the extent of £140,000, making, with the £40,000 already authorised to be spent, £180,000 in all The dangers of drought and hurricane are past, and the season is pronounced to be a good one. The crop coming to the bank is estimated at £330,000, so that the gain to the bank (says the London and China Express) can be readily seen. It must also be remembered that these advances anthorised by the court will not only have the effect of the bank being able to secure a large amount, but it also keeps alive estate on which the Corporation has made advances to the extent of about £400,000. Other estates on which the bank has advances are having their grops nursed by the institution recently started by several gentlemen for this very business in Mauritius. The court has besides given power to expend a further £13,000 on the island if it is found to be necessary to keep some other estates going. As far as Ceylon is concerned an advance £11,000 is authorised, which will be sufficient to carry on to the end of June, and where it can be shown to the interest of the liquidation the court will doubtless authorise what may be found to be necessary. We believe that nothing of a precipitate nature will be undertaken, and not without the fullest investi- Foodhow. gation will the Couft authorise any expenditure. If there are matters fraught with any risk the liquidator possesses the necessary power to make an early close.
